

AN AUTOMOBILE TRAGEDY

NEWTON S. WEEKS, SENIOR IN COLLEGE, HAD NECK BROKEN IN COLLISION.

Coroner's Jury Finds Collision Accidental At A Dangerous Crossing, Both Drivers Trying To Avoid Collision.

Gettysburg and Gettysburg College were saddened on Tuesday by one of those tragedies which seems a part of this automobile age, and in which Newton Spangler Weeks, a Senior in College, aged 20, lost his life.

Harry Hartman, a former student of Gettysburg College, and who has recently moved from McKeesport to Gettysburg, was taking a pleasure drive over the battlefield. He was a member of the A. T. O. fraternity when in college and had four members of that fraternity in his Rickenbacker sedan. Newton Spangler Weeks, of Renovo, Pa.; Robert M. Wolff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Wolff, of Hanover; J. H. Wolf, son of Rev. A. G. Wolf, of Silver Run, Md., and W. K. Allhouse, of Greensburg.

Mr. Hartman was driving and had turned from Hancock avenue into the avenue passing Meade's Headquarters and reaching the crossing of the Taneytown road, was about half across the road when struck.

Francis Smith, employed at the Hutchison Automobile Garage, had been repairing a Chevrolet roadster and had driven out the Taneytown road to try it out and reached the crossing at Meade's Headquarters at the same time the Hartman car arrived there.

An examination of the cars showed that it was not a head-on collision, but the right front of the car driven by Smith struck the left rear of the Hartman car. The latter car was turned over and while all occupants but Weeks seemed to have escaped any serious injury, the neck of Weeks was broken in the collision and he died what is believed to have been an instantaneous death. The Hartman car was righted and came to town under its own power and Weeks was taken to the Annie M. Warner Hospital, but death occurred before he reached that place. The car driven by Francis Smith had to be towed to town.

A most touching memorial service was held in Brua Chapel in Wednesday morning and was presided over by Dean P. M. Bickle, in the absence of President Hanson, who is away on a southern trip. The speakers were Dean Bickle and Professor Charles F. Sanders for the College and Rev. W. C. Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, young Weeks having been a member of the choir of his church. Frederick Reinartz spoke for the student body and was a brother of the A. T. O. fraternity, to which Weeks belonged.

Newton Weeks, the father, and a brother, arrived on Tuesday and the body was taken to his home at Renovo on the 11 o'clock train Wednesday morning, accompanied by a number of classmates and friends.

Coroner Edgar A. Miller on Thursday, at the direction of District Attorney John P. Butt, held an inquest with a coroner's jury composed of P. W. Stallsmith, Charles W. Gardner, Fred Faber, John Spangler, C. W. Myers and H. B. Seaton. The conclusion of the jury was that the collision was an accident, drivers of both cars doing all in their power to avoid the accident at a very dangerous crossing.

Rev. Daniels Returned to Gettysburg.

The Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Church met at Williamsport the end of last week and concluded its labors on Monday. When the appointments were announced the return of Rev. Harry Daniels to the Gettysburg charge pleased many of our people. The Gettysburg congregation will form a separate charge, having separated from New Oxford congregation. These two churches have been one charge for about thirty years. It was while Rev. Horace L. Jacobs was pastor of the Hanover and New Oxford churches that Hanover became a separate station and New Oxford was united with the Gettysburg charge.

Rev. E. H. Heckman was continued as the Superintendent of this District for another year. Rev. Heckman is a warm friend of the Gettysburg charge and wants to see the new church built and prosper and the congregation here rejoices that Dr. Heckman has been retained.

At this conference, delegates were elected to the General Conference as follows: Rev. Skillington, of Altoona; Rev. A. L. Miller, of Lewistown; Rev. Jacobs, of Clearfield; Rev. S. B. Evans, and Rev. J. H. Dougherty, of Williamsport, and Rev. Emory M. Stevens, of Mifflinburg. The reserves to go to General Conference were the superintendents, Rev. E. H. Heckman, Rev. J. E. A. Buck and Rev. A. R. Pyles.

At a meeting of the Annie M. Warner Hospital Board of Trustees last Friday evening, the matter of a Nurses' Home was given consideration and plans and specifications were ready to submit to contractors for their proposals.

STUBBORN FIRE FOUGHT

IN THE RECK BUILDING NEXT DOOR TO THE COMPILER.

The Flames Were Kept to Buildings In Which They Originated And Soon Put Out.

The Gettysburg Fire Company covered themselves all over with the glory of a hard and intelligent fight against an ugly fire which broke out on Baltimore street on last Saturday morning. The fire was kept confined to the buildings in which it started, preventing a spread of flames, which in the stiff March breeze that was blowing spelled disaster to many nearby properties.

At 9:15 Saturday morning the fire started in the work room of the millinery store of Miss Anna Reck, owner of the building in which the store is located and of the building adjoining. The gas stove had been started and had been going for about ten minutes, when suddenly a sheet of flame was seen. The best guess of the cause of the fire is a leaking gas pipe and that it developed after the stove was lighted and started the flames among the inflammable millinery stock.

Miss Anna Reck and her two milliners, Miss Caussey and Miss Evelyn Munderoff, tried to beat out the flames by pulling down the portierres separating the work room from the store room and other material hanging about, but the flames were upon them and drove them from the store room, burning their hands and singeing their hair. They retreated through the opening to the adjoining building, occupied by Dr. J. G. Robinson and his family. The draft or current of air served to be toward this opening and soon the Robinson home was threatened.

The siren alarm brought the fire boys quickly. Chief James B. Aumen had just walked in the Post Office, and at the first cry of fire was in the street, saw the black smoke pouring out of the side door. In a minute or two a fireman came running with chemical apparatus and the chief with others attacked the fire first with chemicals. Soon the smoke subsided and the inside of the store room seemed to be a blazing furnace.

It was only a matter of minutes until both fire engines were on the ground, one at the fire plug in front of The Compiler Building and the other at the Minter corner on East Middle street, and the fire fighters fought the flames subduing until they were subdued. The store room and sitting rooms of Miss Reck in the adjoining building were burning furiously, as was also the dining room in the apartment occupied by Emanuel Reinecker and family. In a short time the fire seemed to be under control and upon examination of all parts where the fire had been it was declared out and the hose lines except one were disconnected.

A stubborn part of the fire yet remained, breaking out in the garret of the building adjoining, the Deatrack building. To reach this fire the front of the building was scaled with ladders, a small part of the slate roof broken into so the fire could be reached. This fire had crept into the garret of the Deatrack house. Quickly this was overcome and all danger over. About 10:30 the Fire Company made complete disconnections.

The millinery store was a complete wreck with no salvage. In a front corner of the store about two dozen Bibles were located in a bookcase. Miss Reck being the local agent of the American Bible Society.

These were but slightly damaged, and a pasteboard box was found at the same point containing money, with a Bible on top of the bills and they were found untouched. Miss Reck had placed on her desk her bank book with forty dollars in bills, which she expected to send to the bank for deposit. This money could not be found. The damage to the buildings was seven thousand dollars.

There was but one verdict over the good work of the firemen and that was unstinted praise for holding in check and overcoming one of the most threatening fire for some years. It was just one year to the day since they successfully fought the fire in the Harris Store property.

Reck has sub-let from the Gettysburg Water Company their room in the Brinkerhoff building Baltimore street, and will occupy the same with her millinery business until the store room in her own property is repaired. Miss Reck spent several days in Baltimore this week purchasing new stock and will have her store ready for business on Saturday morning, March 22nd.

The other car was driven by Nicholas Voullis, of Mt. Carmel, Pa. Voullis was bound for York, and the Reichle car for Gettysburg. The accident occurred when Voullis attempted to pass another car at the crest of a slight grade. He could not stop and there was not room enough to pass between the other cars. Besides Voullis there were two women, two small children and another man in the car. State Trooper Hughes, of Gettysburg, arrived on the scene shortly after the crash and conducted a thorough investigation.

Parent-Teachers Hear of First Aid.

The Parent-Teachers' Association was given a most interesting talk on last Friday evening at the regular March meeting at the High School building by Captain William G. Keib, of Newark, N. J., who is working here at College, teaching first aid methods, which he said should be taught to all school children, especially in a town with a swimming pool. He urged that parents and teachers unite in seeing that first aid methods are taught children. He declared that over 10,000 lives were lost in this country last year because these methods are not known and over 22,000 were saved because they were known and applied. He gave an illustration of the Shafer system of artificial respiration which has been used successfully in cases of supposed drowning, those overcome by gas or electric shocks, and many cases have responded after a few minutes' treatment and others after the treatment was continued four and five hours. The meeting was delightfully entertained by several selections by the High School Orchestra by a duet and encore by Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Zinn and a vocal solo by Miss Smith.

The Man For State Senator.

The Valley Spirit of Chambersburg contained the following news item as to the candidacy of Daniel Sheely for State Senator.

"The Spirit" has on several occasions stated frankly to the public that a man who exactly fits the place would be named for State Senator on the Democratic ticket this fall.

The time has arrived to make this statement good as the petitions to place candidates on the primary ballot must be filed by Thursday of this week, therefore, this paper takes great pleasure in announcing the candidacy of Daniel M. Sheely, of Adams County in Franklin township, near Cashtown, Pa.

Mr. Sheely is a man in the prime of life, fifty years of age, has been engaged in large industrial pursuits for many years, is an extensive fruit grower and large purchaser and feeder of cattle.

His experience as a business man has been varied, extensive and successful. His interest in public affairs has been active, thorough and painstaking. He is one of Adams county's leading farmers and extensive fruit growers and his acquaintance broad and well merited. No man stands higher in the estimation of the people and his election may well be forecast. His character and ability will stand the closest scrutiny. This district could not be better represented than by Daniel M. Sheely.

His father, Noah Sheely, was the pioneer fruit grower of Adams county. His family has been long affiliated with the United Brethren church. His grandfather having been the organizer and builder of an humble church house in his estate.

Sheely Bros., (Daniel M. & Robert P.) manage and operate 900 acres, 700 under cultivation, 325 of which are in young fruit trees, some bearing and others near bearing age. Daniel M. Sheely has never sought public office. He has, however, acted as school director in his township, and was at one time a director of the First National Bank of Gettysburg and is now interested in a cold storage plant and an apple barrel manufactory. Each year he purchases from 400 to 500 head of live stock for development in Adams county. He is the kind of man that is above any petty speculation and the sort of which the very best public officials are made.

The following editorial was in the same issue of "Valley Spirit":

DANIEL M. SHEELY

When a man like Daniel M. Sheely of Adams county presents himself to the voters of this senatorial district the entire electorate can well have a sense of pride in having a man of his wide business experience, well known reputation for unqualified integrity and recognized capacity to meet the needs of the district to represent them in the higher branch of the legislature at Harrisburg. Since this district has been composed as it now is, Adams county has furnished the senator for two terms and Franklin county for a like number. Senators Martin, Democrat, and William Beales, Republican, were from Adams county and Senators John W. Hoke and D. Edw. Long from Franklin county. Three times have the Republicans elected the senator, and once the Democrats. In all fairness it is Adams county's turn to furnish the senator and in the presentation of Mr. Sheely they have met every requirement as to a high class man for the place. Regardless of which county it falls from, Mr. Sheely measures up to the requirements as the present time when agriculture and the common business of the country are most in need of some special consideration. Farming and agriculture in Adams county is in recent years the backbone of the high selling cost of live stock. It is well known that these great interests are represented by keen men of their kind, not for the purpose of getting class advantage, but for the purpose of protecting them in order to give them a share of such prosperity as we may be able, in the near future, to enjoy. Mere words sympathizing and pitying the farmer and the ordinary business man are not enough. They need, and have a right to, a part in determining the policies of government relative to their vocation and life work. The Democratic party can well afford to stand faithfully behind a representative of this large body of voters in this district and ask loyal support from the farmers and business men for a successful man of their kind.

Which Party Benefits By The Tariff On Wheat?

Second Paper by John R. Kuhn.

The writer admits that in his first paper, under his caption, he failed to supply the answer to the question submitted.

He is, unfortunately, unable to condense the subject under consideration, and requests the reader to have patience—awaiting more detailed statement of the questions involved. Along with this statement—he will give an outline of the plan designed to cure the defects of the Tariff System imposed upon Canadian Wheat, and explain the P. D. F. Plan, which is intended to afford agriculturists an adequate price for their products.

In the quotation from the N. Y. American, taken in the first paper, was this optimistic expression of the benefit expected to follow the increase of the tariff on wheat from 30 cents to 42 cents per bushel:—"The President's action will assist in this upward price adjustment of wheat products, and will call a halt to what seems an endless procession of farmers moving into bankruptcy."

Upon reflection, the New York American, March 17, expresses this pessimistic review of conditions:—"Wheat is in a bad way. Within the last week the May option declined in the Chicago market from $1.11 to $1.06. The bottom apparently is not in sight. The plain facts about wheat are that the grain cannot be raised in the U. S. as cheaply as in Canada or the Argentine or Australia, and regardless of what is done by Congress or Farm Council to correct the trouble by legislation, the trouble will remain to plague the farmer and the country. Unpleasant as it is to acknowledge the fact, the truth is that America must curtail its production of wheat."

Among the sensational occurrences in Congress, after date of the President's proclamation, and March 17, when this pessimistic declaration of the Wheat situation was announced, was the defeat of the Norbeck-Burness Bill, favored by the President, intended to authorize the loan of 50 million dollars to be doled out to farmers in sums not exceeding one thousand dollars by the Secretary of Agriculture to be used in the purchase of live-stock, including dairy and beef cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry, suitable for the development of diversified farming.

This Norbeck-Burness Bill is one of the class mentioned in my prior paper, ostensibly designed to help the farmer, but really to help the bankers and high financiers by providing for depleting the Treasury, by issuance of millions of dollars in bonds, preferably non-taxable. If the reader desires a sample, let him request the Clerk of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., for a copy of House Bill No. 2659. This is intended for incorporation of the "Farmers' and Consumers' Financing Corporation Act," with appropriation of 100 million dollars in non-taxable interest bearing bonds to be endorsed by the U. S. and for other purposes.

Now, to get down to consideration of our capital question—the whole yield of wheat produced in the U. S. last year is estimated at 700 million bushels, of which 500 million bushels are required for domestic use—allowing five bushels for each 100 million population. Fifty million bushels are required for seed-wheat, and the remainder is little enough to be retained against possible famine, should the following crop prove inadequate.

The importation of wheat from Canada is not necessary, and the tariff imposed upon it should not be remitted. The quantity imported is estimated at 200 million bushels; and if the tariff of 39 cents were faithfully collected, the revenue would be 60 million dollars, but we are informed that all the revenue collected does not amount to four million dollars.

If the tariff imposed should be collected in cash, the Country would be protected; although, the farmer would continue to be imposed upon by the practice allowed; and the Canadian farmer, also, deprived of a fair price for their wheat. But, what is the use of imposing any tariff upon Canadian wheat imported into the U. S. if it is not faithfully collected? We have not the exact figures, but for the purpose of calculation—we may depend upon these 200 million bushels are imported from Canada every year for which the farmers receive not more than 65 cents a bushel—the producers assuming responsibility for the tariff, which at 39 cents per bushel would amount to 78 million dollars, of which less than four million is collected into the U. S. Treasury.

The bulk of the wheat imported is entered at bonded manufactory duty, and no duty is paid on it, unless it be re-exported for foreign consumption; and if any bond is released in that way, and the duty paid thereon, the amount is credited into the four million dollars collected into the Treasury of Uncle Samuel.

The whole business of importing wheat from Canada is conducted by the combination of Produce Exchanges, Boards of Trade, and other speculators, commonly known as the Grain Trust, which operates in defiance of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, and of the Grain Futures Act.

To answer the question of our caption—WHICH PARTY BENEFITS BY THE TARIFF ON WHEAT? We have the answer here, the Grain Trust.

Our Continuous Obligation

Last year we put in 158,000 new telephones in Pennsylvania. This year we will put in 168,000. During the five years beginning January 1, 1924, the total will be 925,000.

These are gross figures. Our net gain will be about half that number.

Here is an interesting fact: During the coming five years we will actually put in a hundred thousand more new telephones in Pennsylvania than there are in service in the State today.

Every telephone line requires a pair of wires all the way to the central office. That's why we are adding more than half a million miles of new wire each year to our plant in this State.

Every telephone line means central office equipment and building space. That's why we are adding a million and a quarter dollars' worth of telephone apparatus every month inside our buildings.

And that, too, is why it is necessary to enlarge our buildings and to build so many new ones.

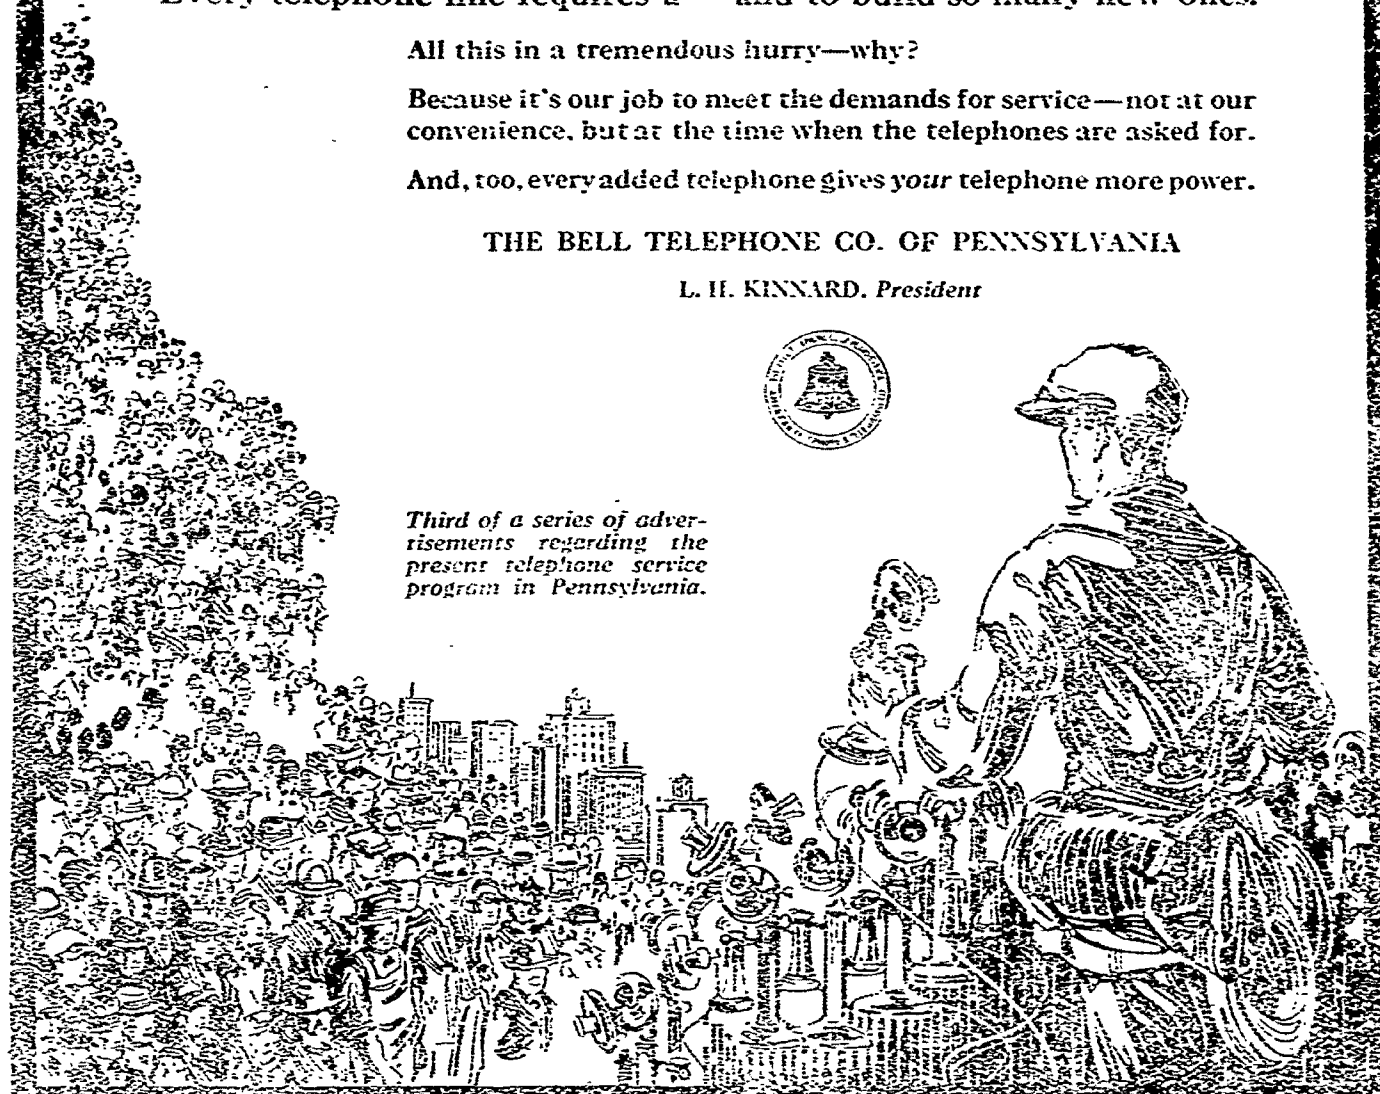

All this in a tremendous hurry—why?

Because it's our job to meet the demands for service—not at our convenience, but at the time when the telephones are asked for.

And, too, every added telephone gives your telephone more power.

THE BELL TELEPHONE CO. OF PENNSYLVANIA

L. H. KINNARD, President

This is not the only Trust, which the Executive Department of our Government of the people, by the people, and for the people, has been unable to suppress or regulate.

Nearly all the farmers in Eastern, Middle and Western States have practiced diversified farming, prior to the Civil War, and have ever since continued to do so; although, in recent years, the quantity of wheat produced has been diminished, because of the inadequate price allowed for the marketable surplus.

Should the tariff now imposed upon Canadian Wheat, 42 cents a bushel, be exacted and actually collected at the Custom Houses, no more wheat would be imported, and we should be relieved from the charge of having a surplus here; and the argument quoted that we must curtail the production of wheat, because the tariff does not protect our farmers from the low cost of producing it elsewhere, becomes apparently absurd.

The P. D. F. Plan Proposed.

The plan proposed for relief of agriculturists, restricted for the present to those only engaged in raising wheat and cotton; but, beneficial also to all persons who wear cotton clothing and require daily bread, is briefly as follows—

Prevail upon Congress for legislation along the lines of the Grain Futures Act, which has been approved by the Supreme Court of the U. S. to have the Government guarantee a minimum price of 2 1/2 cents per pound upon all marketable wheat; and ten cents per pound upon all marketable cotton upon delivery of the products to any "Contract Marker" as defined in that statute.

The writer has more definitions to supply and more arguments to present; but the foregoing may suffice for our second paper.

Congressman Glatfelter's

Good Work.

Since Samuel F. Glatfelter first assumed the duties of Congressman from this district, one year ago, he has been kept busy with many matters submitted by members of his constituency.

In order to handle the volume of business Congressman Glatfelter not only maintains an office in the city, second floor, York County National Bank Building, York, Pa., but also has an office in Washington with a capable clerk in charge.

On the present Congress, Congressman Glatfelter took his seat and has been every session since that time, with the exception of a few when he has been absent because of personal illness, in addition to his duties on the floor of Congress, Mr. Glatfelter has given close attention to the work of several committees on which he is a member, namely Invalid Pension, War Claims and Agricultural Finance, meeting with these committees whenever there was business to be disposed of. One of the many items of work which a congressman is called upon to perform is that of looking after pension claimants in his district. Congressman Glatfelter since assuming his duties has succeeded in obtaining 22 original pensions for York and Adams Counties. He also secured a total of 22 increases in pension for citizens of the two counties. Some pensions are not easily obtained and special bills must be introduced in order to properly take care of those deserving consideration. Up to this date Congressman Glatfelter has introduced 45 special bills. Through his office he has also aided 45 of his constituents in securing passports to travel in foreign countries. The matter of compensation for wounded veterans of the World War also requires quite a bit of attention from the congressman. 72 claims for compensation have been handled by him in the short time he has been the representative of this district in the National Congress.

Besides this the congressman has accepted a number of invitations to speak at public gatherings.

Mr. Glatfelter is enjoying his experience as a Congressman and he insists that all letters coming to his office be promptly answered and the proper attention be given each. He does not try to shirk his duty or responsibility, and is ever ready to listen to the cause of any citizen of the district, irrespective of party affiliation, rank or station who desires his assistance.

On the floor of Congress he pays close attention to the work before the house, and casts his vote conscientiously according to the best interests of his constituents. This policy he adopted at the beginning of his term of office, and he is determined to maintain this policy to the end of his services.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

Clover Is Needed On Adams County Farms.

A good, thrifty stand of clover or alfalfa is a necessary part of the livestock feeding program of every farmer in Adams County. Without a clover or alfalfa sod at regular and frequent intervals, the soil is sure to decline rapidly in fertility.

Manure, lime and fertilizer are important factors in raising clover successfully and the latter two may be essential. The seed, and time and manner of sowing may also be vital points in getting a good stand. Good pure seed of high germination should be assured by noting the guarantee attached to every bag sold in the state. A similar guarantee should be required on all seed from outside sources.

Many noxious weeds are introduced through the sowing of impure seed. A low germinating percentage and a poor crop may often mean low vitality and weak plants.

A great deal of imported red clover seed is now being offered for sale, and so it may be satisfactory but it is less hardy and more subject to disease than the home grown seed. Native seed should have the preference.

Red clover will stand more silt and poor drainage than white clover. The seed is lower in price, and is smaller. This means that only as much as is required per acre. White makes good hay but is not quite as desirable or productive as red clover and will give only one crop each season.

Mammoth red clover is larger, coarser and later than medium red and like alsike, makes no second crop. Its use is seldom advisable except possibly on poor sandy soils. Inoculated northwestern grown alfalfa should be substituted for part of the clover seeding on all well limed and well drained soils.

There seems to be little choice between sowing early and medium late. The weather conditions following the seeding are generally the deciding factors. If sown after the ground is dry enough to take team on the field, an alfalfa-disk drill will cover the seed, reduce the amount of seed required one-third, and help insure a stand. Otherwise, harrowing lightly with a weeder or spike harrow will help cover the seed and will not injure the grain.

Some farmers sow half the seed, wait a week or two and then sow the remainder, putting the second seeding on at right angles to the first. If the first seeding is followed by unfavorable weather, the second may give a stand. Sowing both ways guards against strips and massed areas.

Use Of Lime For Soil Improvement.

By J. W. White.

The great strides made by the State of Pennsylvania since 1910 in taking her rightful place in the front rank among Agricultural states mark an epoch in the history of this great Commonwealth. This rapid advancement in Agricultural wealth may be attributed to a number of causes. A better understanding of the use of lime and commercial fertilizers which has led to a more systematic use of these soil building materials has played a prominent part in this great Agricultural uplift of the Keystone State.

It was left to the thrifty Pennsylvania Dutch to blaze the trail in the use of Agricultural lime in America. The famous garden spot, perhaps better known as Lancaster County, owes much of its nation-wide fame to this historic fact.

The Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station began in 1881 America's oldest lime and fertilizer experiments. Since that time more extensive field experiments have been started on several different soil types over the State. The results of these lime tests still in progress have enabled us to point out a system of liming which has led to a more economical use of this material for the rejuvenation of depleted farm land. These experiments include test of ground, raw burned lime, hydrated lime, pulverized limestone, and precipitated lime carbonate compared in equivalent amounts of active material; that is, lime and magnesium oxides (CaO and MgO). Also experiments are in progress testing out the value of different degrees of fineness of limestone.

These experiments have shown that the various forms of lime when used as indicated have practically the same agricultural value, provided they are all finely ground and applied in equivalent amounts of active material. The farmer is advised, therefore, to buy the form of lime that will give him the greatest number of units of active material at the minimum cost. A unit is equivalent to a percent of twenty pounds per ton. As a general average, agricultural burned lime contains seventy-six units of active material, hydrated lime seventy-four, pulverized limestone fifty-two, marl forty-nine, oyster shells fifty, and precipitated lime carbonate fifty-four units. To determine the cost per unit divide the delivered selling price per ton by the number of units of lime and magnesia.

Now is the time to order lime for your spring crops. Don't wait until the last minute and expect to get it on time. Write to several dealers or producers nearest to your locality and ask for quotations delivered at your railroad station. If you do not have the names of lime manufacturers in your locality, drop a card to J. W. White, State College, Pennsylvania, and you will be furnished with such a list; or get in touch with your County Agent. Whatever form of lime you use be sure to get it well worked into the seed bed. Use a lime spreader if possible and apply about one-half ton of lime carbonate or six to eight hundred pounds of hydrated lime per acre.

The farmers of today want to know how little, not how much, lime can be used to the best advantage. Our experiments have shown that medium applications of any form of lime applied once during each rotation is more economical than a heavier application applied at longer intervals.

Nature has given to Pennsylvania an abundance of limestone. In fact, one-fourth of the limestone used for all purposes in America is quarried in this State. Over one million two hundred thousand acres of our farm land is under-laid with high grade limestone.

Throughout all of our great limestone valleys, limestone is found in abundance. In fact, this valuable soil-building material is found in thirty-three different counties in the State. Seventy-three agricultural lime manufacturers are offering their products for sale to Pennsylvania farmers including the various forms of lime from eight different States. In spite of this fact seventy-five per cent of Pennsylvania soils, equivalent to NINE MILLION ACRES, are in need of lime. This is also true as an average for all eastern soils. Pennsylvania farmers are using annually THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND TONS OF AGRICULTURAL LIME. They should be using, however, ONE MILLION FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND TONS each year for the hay crop alone, which would mean only the equivalent of one thousand pounds of limestone or from six to eight hundred pounds of hydrated lime per acre. At least ONE AND ONE-HALF MILLION TONS additional should be used annually as a top dressing for the rejuvenation and maintenance of the FOUR MILLION ACRES of permanent pastures in the State.

Health Talk.

Co-operating with the State Department of Health's educational campaign, Dr. Lawrence Litchfield of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, says:

The kidneys are among the most important organs of the body. Disease of the kidneys leads to what is popularly known as "Bright's Disease." It is at the bottom of many cases which are diagnosed as "Heart Disease," and which leads to death from heart failure. A large proportion of those individuals who have an abnormally high blood pressure owe that handicap to disease of the kidneys. Many cases of sudden death from so-called "apoplexy" are due fundamentally to an advanced stage of kidney disease.

The function of the kidneys is to dispose of poisonous waste products brought to them in the blood and to watch over the supply of water in the body, eliminating any excess. The kidneys can dispose only of such undesirable substances as come to them dissolved in water, therefore, care must be taken to drink sufficient water for that purpose.

Causes: Overfeeding. There is a great deal of truth in the old English adage that, "The plate kills more than the sword." All the people who are overweight are putting unnecessary work upon their kidneys.

Infections: Scarlet fever is the commonest example of kidney disease following directly upon an infection, but any of the contagious or infectious diseases may be accompanied by or followed by an infection of the kidneys. Acute or chronic infection of the tonsils, and infections about the teeth are very common causes of kidney disease. In cases of chronic constipation the kidneys may be directly infected from the digestive tract through the blood stream. It is probable that many cases of chronic Bright's Disease progress from step to step by repeated infections and such patients should guard themselves most scrupulously against exposure to cold which lowers the resistance of the entire body to infection by germs which may be present. Alcohol in large quantities is believed to be injurious to the kidneys. Overwork of any kind lowers the resistance and increases the strain upon all the vital organs.

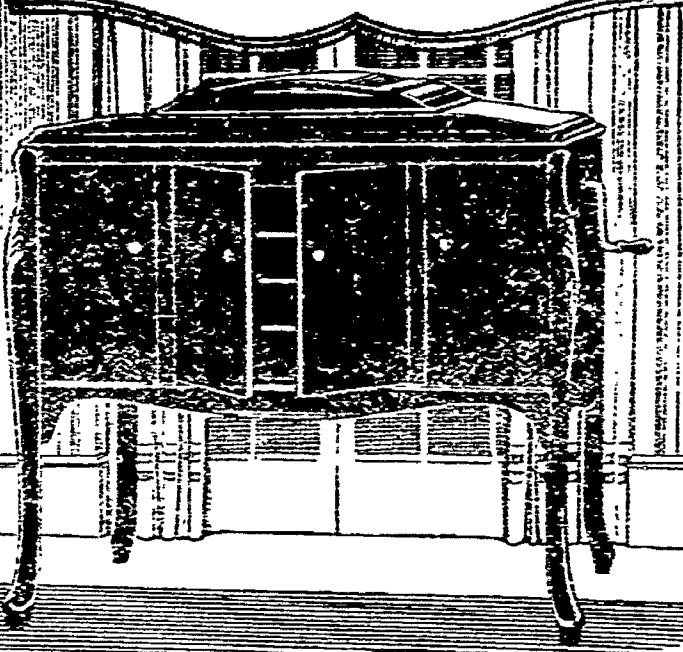

Symptoms: Do not expect kidney disease to be betrayed by a pain in the back. Many cases never have pain in the back and in the majority of cases of backache the kidneys may be perfectly normal. Nervousness, irritability, depression, lack of usual interest in life, energy and initiative, these are the common symptoms in a patient whose kidneys are beginning to fail in their function. Swelling of the ankles, or puffiness under the eyes, or loss of appetite, slight nausea, or indigestion, headache, black specks before the eyes, like falling black snow—blurring of the vision, dizziness—these are the principal signs and symptoms of kidney disease.

And again "A stitch in time saves nine." By avoiding or promptly treating all those conditions mentioned above under the head of "causes," and by conscientious physiological living, the greatest security may be attained. Physical cleanliness means abundance of fresh air, a proper amount of rest, a well balanced diet, conscientious attention to the body weight that it shall not be too great, too little in proportion to the height. The average individual probably takes twice as much meat as is desirable. Bread is the principal cause of excessive weight; potatoes are not responsible for excessive weight as they contain only about one-quarter as much fat producing food as bread.

"Management: When you suspect that your kidneys may be affected or out of order, do not take patent medicine, do not depend on a doctor who immediately gives you medicine without a careful examination of your entire body, and a careful consideration of your diet."

Court To Decide Party Question.

The question whether the Democratic State Committee elect the National Committeemen or whether names can go on the Democratic primary ballot was heard in the Dauphin county courts on Tuesday of this week.

Judges Hargest and Fox, of the Dauphin County Court, reserved decision after hearing argument on the protest filed by J. Frank Patterson, of Millintown, against the action of State election authorities in permitting the printing of the name of Judge Eugene C. Bonarweil, of Philadelphia, on the Democratic primary ballot as a candidate for National Committeeman.

State Chairman McCullough and other party heads contend the State Committee elects the committeemen. Secretary of the Commonwealth King has announced he would certify Bonarweil's name for printing on the ballot unless restrained by the Court. On the last day for filing petitions National Committeeman Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, also filed for a place on the Democratic ballot.

Attorneys John R. Geyer and Paul G. Smith, of Harrisburg, represented Patterson and Henry C. Niles and former Congressman J. Washington Logue, of Philadelphia. Judge Bonarweil. The interests of Guffey were looked after by former Senator Scott S. Leiby, of Perry county. Burt New, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, heard the arguments. Attorneys Niles and Logue argued that, while the act of 1913 with its amendments, provided for the election of National Committeemen by the State Committee, unless the party rules provided otherwise, the party rules and precedent provide for election by popular vote at the primary. Attorney Geyer held the party rule adopted by the San Francisco convention in 1920 was consistent with the Pennsylvania law and that the rule provides that where a State law authorizes the selection of a committeeman by a State Committee the law takes precedence. Major J. O. Campbell, of the Attorney General's office, represented the State, but took no part in the argument.

ing reason for his retirement.... Mr. ment to President Coolidge.... and Daugherty is a lord and an embarrassment to the public interest is paramount, and it should be declared and protected."

Then the Oregonian wants to be informed why Daugherty's "assertive consideration for himself" be permitted to involve and entangle every one officially associated with him, including the President.

"What does Coolidge owe him?" the Oregonian asks, ominously. That question has been answered by the President and the general managers of his campaign, William Butler and Frank Stearns. They have conferred with Mr. Coolidge regarding Daugherty's retention in the Cabinet and his continuance as a delegate at large from Ohio to the Republican national convention. What they may have recommended to President Coolidge in respect to keeping Daugherty as Attorney General was not disclosed after the conference. At any rate, Daugherty remains as one of the President's official family. It is known what Butler and Stearns and the President thought of Daugherty as a political delegate. They "approved his selection" and he will be at the convention to help nominate the next Republican presidential candidate.

Normalcy.

For all that has happened is the natural fruit of normalcy—the doctrine that it's always fair weather when good fellows get together, and that a good fellow undebated by any taint of intellect is good enough to be trusted with the conduct of the nation's business. He may trade off a billion dollars' worth of oil for a hundred thousand dollars' worth of concrete and barbed wire fence; he may sign contracts without reading them; or reading the protests against them; but if he is a good mixer and a good story teller he is all right. That is normalcy, and it is turning out as we might have expected.—Elmer Davis in The New York Times.
